Mr. Samuel Walton, Falls Mills, shipped eix trotters to Philadelphia, some of which started at the Pont Breeze meeting during the past week. These horses showed up well before leaving home, and should give a good account of themselves. They will be campaigned through the New England circuit. A hice fot of foats by Leo Wilkes, son of Red Wilkes, and Altoneer, son of Electioneer, have been dropped at Mr. Walton's place this season, and the yearlings are also a good lot. Elacksburg, Va., June 18, 1894.

Editor Times,—I desire to call the attention of the directors of the Virginia State Agricultural Society, and the people of Virginia, through your valuable paper, to the conditions under which your

colt stakes at your Exposition will be trotted.

The conditions are as follows:
All colts must have been owned in Virginia six months previous to October 1, 1894. From the above you will see that all colts bred and owned outside of the State are barred out of the stakes. There is also unjust discrimination against breeders inside the State. For illustration, we will say A buys a colt the first of April, and he is eligible to trot; and B buys one on the second day of April, and he is barred out. Why? Because the directors and racing committee think he has not been owned here long enough to become acclimated, or to be classed as a Virgina colt. Co., racing and colt stakes are the main factors in building up the trotter in Virginia. I claim that the above conditions are a great injury to the breeding interests of the State.

We advertise to the world that we are breeding second-class horses, that we are afraid to trot our colts against the colts of other States; thus the breeders of Virginia suffer when they go to sell their coits.

The conditions will cut down entries in the purse races as well as the stakes, and cause great financial loss to the Society, as breeders outside of the State will not bring their purse trotters to the Exposition when their colts are barred out, and I am satisfied the society will lose over $1,000 in entrance money, and, instead of having great races with the crack trotters of all States there, and a big crowd to see it, they will have a little second-class sport and light attendance.

I will say in conclusion that to build up the breeding interests of the State our colts will have to meet those of other States; that if owners of other States will go to trouble and expense to come here to trot us, we ought to open the doors wild, and extend to them a hearty welcome.

A little money may leave the State, but the public pays for it all, and the asso-wide, and extend to them a hearty welcome.

A little money may leave the State, but the public pays for it all, and the associations that cater to the public by securing the great troiters for their meetings, are the ones that come out successful in the end. Though we have not been breeding trotters long in this section, our breeders don't ask to trot our colts under cover. We don't ask that a wall be built around the State to keep other colts out, but let Virginia be restored to her former place as a State for fine horses, when the great horses of other States come here to take the measure of Boston and other great ones.

I now ask for a change—that no section be barred—and as part of the committee are willing to make the change, I hope the others won't stand in the way.

I say what I do for the good of the cause, and I desire nothing but the hearty good-will of the directors, and the success of the Exposition.

C. B. McDONALD.

That prominent and widely known fancier of fine road and saddle horses, Shelby T. Harbison, writes me from his home at Lexington, Ky., that the horse market is firmer and more active, Everenceratic and on the alert, Mr. Harbison has recently purchased from Brook Curry a superb lot, numbering an even dozen trotting geldings. Mr. Curry purchased them from Mr. W. L. Simmons, at Ash Grove Farm, where they were bred. They are by such sires as Young Jim, Jay Bird, Eagle Bird, Betterton, and Chatterton, out of richly-bred and producing dams.

out of richly-bred and producing dams.

The fifteen-year-old stallion, Simmons, record 2:28, owned by the estate of the late W. H. Wilson, at Lexington, Ky., has served ninety-two mares this season at a fee of $150 each, which, summed up, gives the snug sum of $13,800—a handsome realization on a stallion at any time.

The black son of George Wilkes and Hack Jane, by Marbrino Patchen, has sightless eyes, but his get are trotters and make race horses of crack calibre. Simmons is now controlled by Mr. Harry K. McAdams, who for a number of years was identified with Abdallah Park, at Cynthiana, Ky.

Volunteer was foaled in 1854 and died in 1858, but his get are yet dropping into the 2:39 list, as his son, McKean, recently took a record of 2:27 l-2 at Newburgh, N. Y. This makes thirty-three performers in 2:29 and better for the mighty son of Hambletonian and Lady Patriot.

Altivo, by Electioneer, out of Dame Winnie, is showing quite a turn of speed at the trot, and will likely take a record of 2:39 or better this season. He is full brother to Palo Alto, 2:08 3-4, who, like his sire and dam, has passed to the unknown.

race at St. Louis a few weeks ago.

During the course of a pleasant chat with Judge R. W. Hughes, who was here last week, I learned that he had recently been to Val Verde Stul Farm, and found his brood marcs and young stock all in good condition. Eric, thoroughbred son of Duke of Magenta, and imported Second Hand, by Stockwell, has served all of the farm mares, and Judge Hughes thinks their produce should make race horses. The following the market on the state of the second that the second thinks their produce should make race horses. The following the number of four have been dropped at Val Verde this season: April 18th, bay coit, St. Luke, by Young Luke, dam St. Mary, by imported Highlander; April 22d, chestnut coit, Penalty, by Pardon, dam Emma Creamer, by Atilia: April 18th, bay filly, Pattence, by Pardon, dam Willy Nilly, by Lord Gordon; April 28th, bay coit, Repentance, by Pardon, dam Alice Milton, by Abd-el-Kader. Each of these mares was bred to Eric. May Carew, by imported Dalnacardoch, and Birdsong, by Lord Gordon, were bred for the first time to Eric. Kate Didn't, by Pimlico, and Goldie M., by Milner, were barren, and bred to Eric, The mare, Freda, by Virgilian, out of Kate Ward, by King Alfonso, purchased Didn't, by Pimilco, and Goldie M., by Milner, were barren, and bred to Eric. The prace. Freduc by Vertillan, out of Kate Ward, by King Alfonso, purchased by Judge Hughes last winter, was also bred to Eric.

There was foaled at Raleigh, N. C., on April 20th, property of Major R. S. Tucker, a chestnut filly by Eon, dam Jennie McCarthy, by Duke of Magenta. Mare bred to Ben Himyar. Major Tucker has claimed the name Jeneona for this filly. Mr. T. B. Doswell purchased at the recent sale of the Chesterbrook yearlings, at the American Horse Exchange, New York, a bay colt, by The Pard, out of Heel and Toe, by imported Gleneig: price, $300; while at the Foxhill sale of yearlings, a bay colt, by Wilful, out of Habette, by Iroquois, fell to his bid of $125. Among the Coldstream offerings at the same time and place, Mr. Doswell secured a chestnut colt, by Hanover, out of The Niece, by Alarm, for $900.

Capt. R. J. Hanceck, Ellersile Stud Farm, Overton, Va., has claimed the following names:

Niola, for a brown filly foaled 1894, by Eolus, dam Mita, by Imported Billet, Merry Maid, for bay filly foaled 1894, by Eolus, dam Mermaid, by Imported St. Elaise.

Eostree, for bay filly foaled 1894, by imported Charaxus, dam Eolee, by Eolus, Ninos, for bay filly, foaled 1894, by imported Charaxus, dam Eolee, by Eolus, Ninos, for bay filly, foaled 1894, by imported Charaxus, dam Eolee, by Eolus, Eostree, for bay filly foaled 1894, by imported Charaxus, dam Eolee, by Eolus.

Ninos, for bay filly, foaled 1894, by imported Charaxus, dam Ninone, by Eolus.

At the Belle Mead sale of yearlings, held in New York, the bay filly by Benddor, out of Ollie, by Virgil, went to Pitts & Dorrier for $250, and they are well pleased with her. These rentiemen are collecting quite a stud of thoroughbreds at Valmont Stud Farm, Scottsville, Va.

At the head of their stud Messrs, Pitts & Dorrier have the stallion Norwood, by Longfellow, out of May Day, by imported Buckden. He is a bay horse sixteen hands high, and his dam has produced Blue Day, Larchmont, Dalsy F., Sam Walton, and Fay S.

In commenting on the Ellersite yearlings in these columns last Sunday, and referring to a chestnut filly out of Thomasia, I inadvertently mentioned the latter as the dam of Knight of Ellersite, when she should have been spoken of as the sister to that good race horse and grand young sire of race horse and grand young sire of race horse and grand young sire of race horse that has to his credit Henry of Navarre, the crack three-year-old of the present season: Sir Knight, Herald, J. W. Brooks, Wist, Carrie H., and other excellent performers.

While errors are to be regretted, still the one in this instance can do no harm, and the purchaser of the Charaxus—Thomasia—filly that is described as faultiess in symmetry will secure the prospect of a grand race mare, descended from great performing and producing families on both sides.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it falls to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

CHICAGO. ILL., June 39.—A few belated longs and shorts in July wheat kept the trade going on a desultory way during to-day's half session. The longs, seeing no immediate prospect for a fruition of their hopes of an advance, were buying as far in the future as possible, after disposing of their July, December being the preferred option. Shorts were not so particular, and as things have been coming their way with so much regularity, put out the equivalent of what they bought for July in shipment. December, for the reason mentioned, presented more strength than the near-by deliveries. There was no outside business to speak of. The general tone was easy. How the peanut found its way into this country is a mystery. There is a tradition that some of the slaves who were brought from Africa and sold in North Carolina introduced the leguminous plant into that State. The peanut is indigenous to Africa; and if it be true that we owe its introduction here to the abhorred slave trade it is the single item of credit which can be carried to the account of that inhuman traffic.

BALTIMORE.

BALTIM

When the Countess Elsa de Batthyany, who was in Vienna, heard of the conviction of her son, she exhibited neither astonishment nor anger. During two months she had experienced all the bitterness that the heart of a monther could endure. Her two brothers fell, one at Komorn and the other at Villages, for the cause of their country. Her oldest son, Casimir, a proscribed wanderer, was at last forced to seek safety in flight; and now Louis, the youngest, the one upon whom she lavished most of her solicitude and affection, was about to be executed.

reo noble to know hatred, and too en-

Too noble to know hatred, and too encretic to allow herself to be cast down, she resolved to 40 everything possible to save her son even at the cost of her patriotic pride.

She went to the imperial Palace and obtained an audience with the Archduchess Marie Anne, the Emperor's aunt, who was then about forty years old, a woman of haughty mien, and of a character both narrow and cruel. But she enjoyed at court unlimited authority and influence. In the bottom of her heart she concealed a secret and ardent love for Louis Batthyany, whom she had seen at the tribune of the Diet, and to whose flery and splendid eloquence she listened with delight when his magnificent voice thrilled the entire assembly, which rose in a fever of excitement to give him triumphant cheers.

This passion, however, was known to

This passion, however, was known to the mother of Louis. She threw herself at the feet of the Princess. Bent down by grief, with extended supplicating arms, and her breast heaving with sobs which she could not suppress, and which almost hindered her from speaking, she implored her to have pity on the captive that she loved and to spare him the shame of a degrading death.

The Archduchess Marie-Anne lifted her up and then reflected for a considerable time in silence. Gradually her features essumed an anxious expression and her eves blazed with a mysterious and profound expression "Madam," said she slowly, "I will set out this evening. Tomorrow I shall see your son. If he contents to obey me. I swear to you that I will obtain for him from the Emperor his life and his !herty." And she offered her two hands to the poor mother, who then commenced to have some hope.

The next day the Archduchess visited Batthyany. "Count Louiz" said she, "there is a lady born on the steps of a throne, a Princess of royal blood, the object of the advantages of youth or beauty. In exchange she asks a little of your affection and the promise to remain with her for life."

The prisoner remained impassible "Madam," said he quietly, "I know the lady of whom you speak. You can tell her that I cannot consent to abandon those who are condemned like myself, the men who have been my companions in battle and who are soon to be my companions in execution. But since this lady is so high placed that her voice can reach the Emperor, I will ask her one favor, and that is to go and see him and tell him from me that the war carried on by Hungary against two presumptions powers in Europe is a struggle which is destined finally to overthrow tynanny and to achieve the independence of people.

The Princess was not discouraged. She spoke to him with eloquence and implored him with passion; but she could not change the resolution of the captive.

At last Batthyany told her the secret cause of his resistance. "It is useless, madam," said he, "to so on any fur

He had to be brought to the place of execution in a cart, because he was unable to walk on account of his broken leg; and one after the other he saw his comrades mount the scaffold.

"This is strange," said he; "I, who was always the first to meet the enemy, am now compelled to march behind the others."

At last the turn of Batthyany came. Without a tremor and with a haughty mien, the prisoner advanced to the place of execution.

The officer brought up his men and shouted: "Ready! Aim!"

At that moment Eatthyany gazed with serenity upon the mysterious veil on the balcony, and it seemed to him that through it he could see two splendid eyes that gazed upon him with burning intensity.

The last moment had arrived.

"Fire!" shouted the officer.
There was a rolling detonation, and heavily the body dropped to the ground.

At the same instant the figure on the balcony suddendly tore away the white veil and as it fell it revealed another, and that was black.

How They Waitz in Kentucky.

How They Waitz in Kentucky.

A Danville girl tells the Advocate the following with regard to waitzing: "No one waitz, even when danced with the same partner, is exactly the same. It is always a new sensation. The music is not in the same key, and the waitz does not touch the same chords of one's soul. If I dance twenty waitzes in the evening I have twenty different thrills of pleasure. With one partner it is a soft, insidious measure; with the next, a long and languorous movement; with the third, more of a hop, that gently lars the brain into a delicious, dreamy forgetfulness; while the fourth cavalier, with a heroic tread hears you away with strong and vigorous rhythm into still another world. The lights of this go out, you lose consciousness, but you feel no dread as you lie within those herculean arms like a child rocked to sleep in his father's embrace. Your feet are no longer on the earth. It's a celestial rotation out into space, and when you light on earth again you feel like a tired bird stopping from a long flight."
